

St Ann's – Reading Curriculum

National Curriculum

Children should be assessed using age appropriate fiction and non-fiction, from a variety of origins and traditions, covering over-time a wide range of text types, forms and purposes.

St Ann's Reading Spine

Rationale

Books covering a range of genres, based on different cultures and from a range of authors – classic and modern.

Range of themes

Expose all pupils to this – through class story, whole class reading, literacy units based on these, where possible – make links with projects

Exposure to this links with school priority of raising expectations – ensuring that the texts are within an age appropriate lexile content, whilst also considering age appropriate themes.

In the first instance – this is about exposing pupils to these texts. There is no requirement for all pupils to read these as individuals.

*Links between texts and projects should not be contrived
